

Staffing for Success:

Establishing Core Competencies and Training Supports for Corrections and Community Supervision Staff

December 2020

Historically, the missions of corrections and community supervision agencies (including probation and parole) have focused on containment and control to protect public and institutional safety. Today, rehabilitation and reentry support are core responsibilities of these agencies. This shift, informed by research on what works to reduce recidivism, is important but also means a new set of considerations for staff recruitment, retention, and development.

Carrying out needed recidivism-reduction strategies requires staff and leadership to have strong competencies in correctional and supervision practices and the appropriate skills to respond to the broad range of needs that may impact the likelihood that a person will reoffend. This resource features an adaptation of a comprehensive matrix developed by the Iowa Department of Corrections (IDOC) to outline core competencies for positions at each level—from front-line officers to executive leaders. For all staff directly involved in the supervision of people in prisons or in the community (i.e., excluding staff in areas such as health care, research, and non-executive administration), IDOC developed this competency matrix and related training and reference materials to clearly articulate what is necessary to effectively carry out each role. In addition to competencies, the matrix also includes traits that pertain to how staff present themselves to other staff and to clients as a model for good behavior. The matrix is used as a guide for hiring, performance evaluation and coaching, and career advancement. It is also incorporated into job descriptions so people applying for these positions know what is expected of them at the outset and into performance plans thereafter (see examples in Appendix A and B).

This project was supported by Grant No. 2016-MU-BX-K011 awarded by the Bureau of Justice Assistance. The Bureau of Justice Assistance is a component of the Department of Justice's Office of Justice Programs, which also includes the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the National Institute of Justice, the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, the Office for Victims of Crime, and the SMART Office. Points of view or opinions in this document are those of the author and do not necessarily represent the official position or policies of the U.S. Department of Justice.

About the Resource

IDOC developed this matrix over a three-year period as part of its Second Chance Act Statewide Adult Recidivism Reduction grant from the U.S. Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Assistance. To determine the competencies and traits needed, IDOC conducted a thorough review of evidence-based practices (EBPs) to reduce recidivism and convened a workgroup of representatives from their prisons, community corrections agencies, and IDOC front-line staff and supervisors.

Because IDOC recognized that people may not have all of the following skills and competencies to start, they offer training and coaching in all areas to support staff and help them meet expectations. For each staff person, IDOC offers training relevant to their position level; and whenever possible, IDOC also trains staff in the competencies that pertain to the next level above their positions to prepare them for advancement.

To use this resource, agencies should further adapt the matrix based on their own policies, resources, and priorities.

IDOC developed four competency levels of their matrix to reflect the command of particular skills and traits needed to effectively perform in each staff position:

- 1 Basic – Competencies expected of staff at each level, beginning with entry-level officer positions and up to executive staff, in which staff have a general understanding of key principles and practices but may have limited applied experience.
- 2 Intermediate – Staff have solid understanding of key principles with the ability to apply them to a range of moderately complex situations.
- 3 Advanced – Staff display a broad and deep understanding of key principles and have a strong ability to apply and articulate the knowledge regularly, independently, and in complex, varied situations; they can also serve as a model to other staff in these competencies.
- 4 Managerial/Supervisory – Staff consistently display their command of organizational and staff development; note that frontline supervisors and executive staff have additional expectations due to their roles in establishing and maintaining organizational culture and goals.

Additionally, for all staff levels, IDOC created guidelines on the traits considered in the initial screening process for new hires and, later, the processes for evaluating staff performance and candidacy for promotion. These guidelines informed the development of other tools, such as standard questions and checklists, to support managers in hiring and evaluating staff (see example in Appendix C).

An important feature of the matrix is the information it provides on the different types of training available to staff for each competency—such as the core correctional practices training offered by the University of Cincinnati’s Corrections Institute or IDOC’s own training on emotional intelligence—and on the formats IDOC uses to implement each training, such as through e-learning or on-the-job training. Also included are notes on the source materials that IDOC drew from when selecting which competencies they wanted to prioritize, so that staff may better understand the concepts and seek additional information. These topics and source materials include, but are not limited to:

- Risk, need, and responsivity (RNR) principles: A set of research-based principles to determine how to allocate resources, deliver services, and provide people in prison and on community supervision with the specific supports and services that will have the greatest impact on recidivism and public safety.¹
- Core correctional practices (CCPs): An approach staff can use with clients to increase prosocial behavior and reduce recidivism. Practices include relationship building; effective uses of reinforcement, disapproval, and authority; prosocial modeling; cognitive restructuring; and support with social skills and problem solving.
- Supervision strategies: Case management activities that include responding to violations, motivational interviewing, structured office appointments, community-based referrals, and collateral contacts (i.e., interactions with treatment providers, family members, employers, and other third parties to check in on a person’s status).
- Reentry strategies: Activities to help people begin planning for their return to the community, including transition and reentry planning, using home placement questionnaires, and helping people enroll in benefits and making necessary medical and mental health appointments.
- Other EBPs and best practices, based on guidance from the National Institute of Corrections.
- Organizational management, based on resources from the Harvard Business Review.

The key below indicates how roles at IDOC correspond to the position levels used in the matrix and displays more information about the training and reference materials available to staff.

Iowa Department of Administrative Services – Human Resources Enterprise Job Classification Description

Correctional Officer

Definition

Maintains safety and security within an Iowa Department of Corrections correctional facility; supports department mission, vision, and values with integrity and commitment while preparing incarcerated individuals for successful community reentry; develops quality relationships and serves as a change agent when working with incarcerated individuals; performs related work as required.

The work examples and competencies listed below are for illustrative purposes only and not intended to be the primary basis for position classification decisions.

Work Examples

As part of a multi-disciplinary team, observes incarcerated individual behavior/interaction with staff, other incarcerated individuals, and visitors; communicates and documents observations to ensure effective security and consistent application of incarcerated individual change principles.

Continuously interacts with incarcerated individuals, utilizing behavioral techniques to assist in the development of problem-solving skills, facilitating behavior change, role-playing, effective disapproval, providing positive reinforcement when appropriate, and instituting corrective measures through the effective use of disapproval.

Patrols facilities and makes security checks; conducts rounds and incarcerated individual counts; inspects all areas of the institution and grounds for safety/security deficiencies. Conducts searches of incarcerated individuals, vehicles, packages, equipment, incarcerated individuals' cells and property for contraband items.

With a balanced approach, instructs incarcerated individuals in rules, policy, procedure, expectations, and assists incarcerated individuals in the development of attitudes and skills necessary for successful adaptation to life within an institution and a pro-social lifestyle.

Escorts incarcerated individuals, visitors, and staff inside/outside of the institution and verifies possession of appropriate passes or legal documents.

Interacts with the general public, visitors, and victims in person or via phone. Provides information, security, and assistance.

Role models pro-social behaviors that convey dignity and respect for others and acknowledge that incarcerated individuals can change their lives by development of skills and the adoption of pro-social attitudes and behaviors.

Maintains logs, prepares reports, and enters information into the DOC electronic record system.

Supervises incarcerated individual work assignments and evaluates work performance.

Operates electronic doors, telephone systems, two-way radios, intercom, alarm systems, closed circuit TV systems, personal data assistants, computer terminals, and weapons/incarcerated individual control devices.

Attends training and professional development classes.

Competencies Required

Knowledge:

- Public Safety and Security – Relevant equipment, policies, procedures, and strategies to promote effective local, state, or national security operations for the protection of people, data, property, and institutions.
- Law and Government – Laws, legal codes, court procedures, precedents, government regulations, executive orders, agency rules, and the democratic political process.
- English Language – The structure and content of the English language, including the meaning and spelling of words, rules of composition, and grammar.
- Clerical Procedures – Word processing, managing files and records, designing forms, and other office procedures and terminology.
- Psychology – Human behavior and performance; individual differences in ability, personality, and interests; learning and motivation; psychological research methods; and the assessment and treatment of behavioral and affective disorders.

Abilities:

- Law and Government – Understand and adhere to applicable laws, legal codes, administrative rules, and regulations.
- Oral Comprehension – Listen to and understand information and ideas presented through spoken words and sentences.
- Oral Expression – Communicate information and ideas in speaking so others will understand.
- Speech Clarity – Speak clearly so others can understand.
- Speech Recognition – Identify and understand the speech of another person.
- Problem Sensitivity – Tell when something is wrong or is likely to go wrong. It does not involve solving the problem, only recognizing there is a problem.
- Deductive Reasoning – Apply general rules to specific problems to produce answers that make sense.
- Inductive Reasoning – Combine pieces of information to form general rules or conclusions (includes finding a relationship among seemingly unrelated events).
- Flexibility of Closure – Identify or detect a known pattern (a figure, object, word, or sound) that is hidden in other distracting material.
- Near Vision – See details at close range (within a few feet of the observer).
- Far Vision – See details at a distance.

Skills:

- Social Perceptiveness – Awareness of others' reactions and understanding why they react as they do.
- Active Listening – Giving full attention to what other people are saying, taking time to understand the points being made, asking questions as appropriate, and not interrupting at inappropriate times.

- Monitoring – Monitoring/Assessing performance of yourself, other individuals, or organizations to make improvements or take corrective action.
- Coordination – Adjusting actions in relation to others' actions.
- Judgment and Decision Making – Considering the relative costs and benefits of potential actions to choose the most appropriate one.
- Critical Thinking – Using logic and reasoning to identify the strengths and weaknesses of alternative solutions, conclusions or approaches to problems.
- Complex Problem Solving – Identifying complex problems and reviewing related information to develop and evaluate options and implement solutions.
- Speaking – Talking to others to convey information effectively.
- Reading Comprehension – Understanding written sentences and paragraphs in work related documents.

Minimum Qualification Requirements

Graduation from high school, GED, or equivalency.

Notes

All applicants must be able to successfully pass the following:

- Psychological tests
- A background investigation check.
- A post-offer health screen administered by an institutional physician.
- A urinalysis screen for drugs.
- All new employee training during the probationary period, including local orientation, new employee orientation, and emergency preparedness training.

Designated positions in this job class require applicants to obtain a Commercial Driver's License and endorsements within a period of time as determined by the appointing authority at the time of hire.

Effective date: 01/19 SA
