GRANTEE EXPERIENCE
Cumberland County, Maine
Cumberland County Project Reentry for Adult Offenders with Co-Occurring Disorders

Project Description
Cumberland County’s Project Reentry for Adult Offenders with Co-Occurring Disorders in Portland, Maine, and surrounding areas will serve 90 individuals, age 18 and older with co-occurring disorders who are at a medium to high risk of recidivating and are returning from Cumberland County Jail, which is the largest in the state. The goal is to use validated risk and need assessments to identify individuals in the jail and implement linkages among community organizations and the correctional system through the use of a reentry specialist, a case manager and a peer support worker to establish a continuum of care beginning in the jail and extending into the community. As citizens reentering the community, individuals are connected to intensive behavioral health treatment as well as to housing, natural supports, health care, vocational, and other resources they may need to be successful. An external evaluator from a local university provides evaluation.
