

NEVADA

SNAPSHOT OF EMPLOYMENT-RELATED COLLATERAL CONSEQUENCES

JANUARY 2021

The National Inventory of Collateral Consequences of Conviction (NICCC) is an online database that catalogs the state and federal statutes and regulations that limit or prohibit people convicted of crimes from accessing various rights, benefits, and opportunities.

As of 2020, the NICCC identifies 760 provisions of Nevada law that impose these “collateral consequences,” a large majority of which act as barriers to employment for people with criminal convictions (see FIG. A). This fact sheet provides an overview of employment-related collateral consequences in Nevada.

TYPES OF EMPLOYMENT-RELATED CONSEQUENCES

Collateral consequences impact employment opportunities either by restricting access to occupational licenses needed to work in certain fields, restricting access to business licenses needed to pursue self-employment, or directly limiting the ability of employers to hire or retain workers with certain conviction histories. FIG. B shows the number of Nevada consequences that impact each of these three employment-related opportunities.

IMPACTED FIELDS

Collateral consequences affect a range of employment fields. FIG. C identifies the top 10 fields impacted by employment-related consequences in Nevada. The figures indicate the number of employment-related consequences that impact each field.

DISCRETION IN APPLICATION

State law determines whether a consequence must be imposed or may be imposed. Mandatory consequences generally prohibit, without exception, the employment, retention, or licensing of a person with a conviction for a specified offense. Discretionary consequences authorize employers, licensing entities, and other decision-makers to impose a consequence, but do not require that they do so. Note that some laws require criminal background checks of applicants for employment or licensure without indicating how the decision-maker should act in response to the results. For the purposes of FIG. D, these “background check-only” provisions are considered discretionary consequences. FIG. D indicates the percentage of Nevada’s employment-related consequences that are either mandatory or discretionary.

DURATION OF EFFECT

Employment-related consequences may remain in effect for a time-limited duration (usually a specific length of time, beginning on the date of conviction or completion of sentence) or may be indefinite in duration (i.e., no specific time included in the law). FIG. E indicates the percentage of Nevada’s employment-related consequences that are either time-limited or indefinite. For the purposes of FIG. E, consequences that end once a person satisfies some legal condition, such as completing a drug treatment program or driver training course, are treated as time-limited. Note that a consequence described as indefinite may not be permanent if state or federal law allows the consequence to be removed through a legal process such as criminal record clearance or executive pardon (see General Relief from Collateral Consequences for more).

TRIGGERING OFFENSES

Collateral consequences can be triggered by convictions for a wide range of criminal offenses. Some consequences are triggered by specific offenses, while others are triggered by broader categories of offenses such as “any felony” or “violent crimes.” FIG. F highlights some of the triggering offense categories used by the NICCC and the number of Nevada’s employment-related consequences triggered by convictions within each category. Note that a consequence assigned to a triggering offense category like “controlled substances offenses” may be triggered only by one specific type of controlled substance offense in the jurisdiction, not all controlled substances offenses.

GENERAL RELIEF FROM COLLATERAL CONSEQUENCES

Nevada law provides the following broadly effective mechanisms that may reduce the legal effects of employment-related collateral consequences:

RECORD CLEARANCE: Sealing is available for most offenses after a waiting period of 1 to 10 years, depending on the offense. Sealing limits the imposition of most collateral consequences, though exceptions apply for certain types of work. Prior convictions may impact eligibility.

LIMITS ON CONSIDERATION OF CONVICTIONS: Public employment may not be denied on the basis of conviction without consideration of factors including whether a direct relationship exists between the offense and the job, age of the conviction, and evidence of rehabilitation.
